The US and European stock markets continued their positive ride pushed by strong corporate earnings.

Johnson & Johnson, Bank of America, Charles Schwab, and many other public companies took the markets up for a ride amid a strong dose of optimism.

In Europe, the investors are closely watching the UK 180 reversal lifting grave concerns that evaporated and already impacted stemming from the ill advised, designed, and announced tax cuts.

The ride up took all sectors higher with Meanwhile, all sectors traded higher, with financials, materials, and industrial performing the best.

Another key item we are watching is the US treasury 10-year note closing at 4.01%, this is the highest level in 14 years.

We must point out that the yield curve remains significantly inverted with the US 2-year note closing at 4.43%.
